Tuesday the police were called by Tenner's wife to come to her assistance at their home at the corner of Crest avenue and Twelfth street. She stated to the police that her husband had been drunk for several days and that when she complained of lack of food for herself and five children he beat her with the broomstick.

Locusts Are Troublesome

Seventeen-Year Visitors Destroying Trees in Fayette County

It is reported that there is a large belt through the mountain districts of Fayette county where the seventeen year locusts are playing havoc with young fruit trees. Some orchards, which were started last year or this year have been completely devastated.

It is said the locusts will destroy a young orchard within seven days. They work just on the tender branches and can't kill big trees, although the ymay damage them to some extent.

The locusts crawl along the tender limbs, sink their stinger in about every half inch and deposit a large number of eggs. After the insects have done this stinging it is said they die within 12 hours and the branches of the trees turn brown, within and die.

PANAMA COAL IS SHIPPED

Initial Tow for Canal Now on Way Down the Ohio River

DISTRICT BENEFITED

The Panama canal coal trade which promises to be the source of big developments in the coal industry of the Pittsburgh district, as well as other districts is beginning to open up. The first shipment of Monongahela River coal is now on its way to Panama, it consisting of a tow of 22 river barges.

The initial shipment of coal from the rich Monongahela valley coal region represents approximately 250,000 bushels of the many millions of bushels that will follow to Panama before the present contract is fulfilled. At the present time the tow is on its way down the Ohio river in charge of the towboat Export.

Delivery will be made at New Orleans and from there the coal will be transferred to sea going transports and by them unloaded at the receiving station of the Panama canal.

For months coal men of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia have been laying plans for increased activity incidental to the opening up of the Panama canal trade, the importance of which they well realized. Railroads likewise have recognized the importance of the Panama canal and to that end tentative plans have been laid to open up new coal regions. Some of these have been carried out.

The river coal trade will be bet-

Preparations are well under way for the commencement exercises of the Douglas Business college, which will be held in the high school auditorium Friday evening, June 26. Dr. Andrew M. Shea, D. D., of McKeesport formerly of Wilkesburg will address the graduating class which is one of the largest in the history of the institution. Forty-two will be graduated.

Warren Douglas of McKeesport took over the local college in 1905, and since that time it has grown each year. Last year the number of graduates was about the same as this year the following is the class for 1914:

Complete commercial course—Mazie Elizabeth Carter, of Monongahela; Lewis L. Phillips, Bessie E. Reilly, of Allentown; Evelyn Agnes Whitney of Donora; Samuel Edward Rehson of California; Elizabeth Creevey, of Webster; Jessie June Bunting, of Roscoe; Fannie Searson, of Roscoe.

TOLLS NOT EXCESSIVE COMMISSION DECLARES

The Public Service Commission Tuesday dismissed the complaint of Thomas C. Balbridge against the McKeesport and Duquesne Bridge company in which excessive tolls had been alleged. The commission found that the company has never paid a dividend and that its tolls are less than permitted in many cases.

CHARITY BOARD'S AID TO BE ONLY TEMPORARY

Borough to Change in System of Helping Poor Effectuated at Meeting

Hospital Highway to be Given Attention by Street Men--

Troublesome Route Now TO BE MOST THOROUGH County to be Asked to Assist Where Cases Are of Long Duration

The hill road to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital, which has been practically impassable for some time is to be repaired. The borough council decided Tuesday night to give a day's work of the street men on the road if North Charleroi and Monessen boroughs will do the same.

There has been considerable complaint about the road, which is rough and filled with stones. It has been necessary to carry patients up the hill to the hospital for some time. Several days last week during the temporary warm weather Chief of Police C. W. Albright and his men had to carry heavy persons to the hospital. It was mostly through the chief's efforts that council took action Tuesday night for the road's improvement.

TO BE MOST THOROUGH

County to be Asked to Assist Where Cases Are of Long Duration

At a quarterly meeting of the Associated Charities of Charleroi, which was held in the borough building Tuesday evening a plan was considered whereby the board will be able to aid more people on a similar amount of money to that expended by the board last quarter. The plan is to give temporary help, or first and then turn each case over to the county authorities, so that needy people may be sent to the county home.

Heretofore the board has assisted many families for considerable time. Many people would rather accept aid from the Associated Charities than they would go to the county home. In the future the policy of the board will be to give aid but not to keep the families on their roll any length of time.

There is a balance in the treasury of $197.11. This will be sufficient to run the association until the regular fall collections are taken. Bills were ordered paid for the past quarter to the amount of $153. Fifteen families were helped during the past quarter. The board authorized the printing and publishing of the bylaws of the Associated Charities.

CLOSE CALL FOR FIVE PERSONS IN AUTO ACCIDENT

When an automobile driven it is stated by Joseph Creevey, of 82 Schoonmaker avenue, Monessen struck a concrete abutment at Fairhope some time during Tuesday night the four in the machine in addition to Mr. Creevey, it is understood had a very narrow escape. The machine was badly damaged. It was later brought to the Elite garage at Charleroi.

THE CROP REPORTS

With the wheat harvest already begun in many sections and soon to be started in others, it is an assured fact that the harvest this year will be far in excess of any other year in the country's history, says the Mc-Keesport Daily News. Government
reports of 900,000,000 bushels means almost half the world's crop will be raised here. The same glowing reports of oats, barley and rye are sent out also.

None can now estimate accurately
the value of these crops in money.
Wars and threatened wars, short crops
and famines abroad have created markers. The probabilities are the prices will not be greatly effected.
The immense crop means untold billions of wealth from the soil in this country this year.

In the states west of the Missouri river the great crops will materially ease up the stringent conditions in which the farmers find themselves on account of the corn shortage last year.
Railroads are already crowding cars
into the wheat growing states to move the crops. Calls for harvesters are insistent. There is every indication that the crops are going to come to the relief of the otherwise seemingly stagnant industrial conditions.

This condition is proven by the announcement made from the office of a local railroad company yesterday, which is sending out a plea asking that all shippers unload cars as soon as possible as empties are soon to be in demand. The railroads are the first to note the coming of a busy season
which means the return of prosperity.

THAT TROLLEY LINE

If that electric railway corporation
which announces its intention of connecting up the county seat with the Monongahela valley by trolley, means business and means it in such a way that the proposed line will be built otherwise than on paper, the people are with them. If it does not mean business except as a means of obtaining rights for utilization in the dim and distant future then the sooner it gets out of the way the better.

A trolley line to the county seat
is a good looking business proposition on the face of it. From a public point of view it would be a most convenient thing. To think of the possibility of reaching the county seat

ROYAL

Absolutely Pure BAKING POWDER

Makes Home-Baking Successful and Easy

without traveling half-way to Pittsburg and then branching back to reach the destination, is a decidedly attractive thing to think about.

The proposed line to the county seat would traverse presumably, an air-line route from Bentleyville to Washington. Of course the company says that it would build to Bentley-ville from Monongahela to make it a through line, but who cares. Charleroi is nearer Bentleyville than Monongahela, and would undoubtedly obtain profit from the Washington line.
The significance of this statement is within a short time through service to Bentleyville will be established from Charleroi.

There is little doubt but that a trolley line to Washington would please Monongahela valley people, which means that it would pay. So if boosting is to be done the Monongahela valley people will do it, but first they want to know that the company
means business.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

That Bunola boy who started to walk home when his parents took him on a visit to Monessen was only feeling a desire felt previously by others—the desire to get out of Mon-essen.

A man claims he has invented a sort of trolley car that will run 500 miles an hour. No objection will be made to his claim as inventor, but one is inclined to believe his inventions concern mostly the fabrication of something to take the place of the plain truth.

tain 150 girls at luncheon. He's welcome to the pleasure he gets out of

Fayette county is holding a Sunday school convention and automobile races at the same time. Talk about a county torn by dissensions!

This is the time of year when mere-man begins to think hard thoughts

Fourth of July.

ed States is a Greene County jury.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Brown bought a business through an agent as a going concern in first-class condition. After six months he faded but took his trouble very lightly.

Meeting the agent some time later,
he said:

"Do you remember selling me a business as a going concern?"
"Yes, of course I do," replied the agent.

"Well," said Brown. "It's gone."

"Every time I see a puppy dog running, I am compelled to laugh," said
a business man this week. "It makes no difference how busy I may be at the time, or how serious I may be expected to be I laugh. If I should be attending a funeral as one of the chief mourners and should see a puppy dog racing across the street, I should feel impelled to 'snicker' even at the expense of losing my supposed good reputation.

"What makes me think of this is a sight I saw the other day at Third street. Two boys had a pup. That pup was about the happiest animal you ever saw, in spite of the fact that a cord was attached to its neck. It was one of those tiny Fox Terriers,
and possessed the usual characteristic of large head and large feet. In other words it was not well balanced.

"Those boys got that pup to running and you should have seen it. It was careful in crossing the curb to get down from the one side safely.
To the opposite corner it raced after the boys who by this time had dropped the string. The pup leaped for the top of the curb on that side.
Failing to estimate the distance correctly it tripped. On its head the pup went, and for a second stood on its head while its feet got all tangled up.

"Was it funny? Well I nearly lost a business transaction over it."

ENGLISH SLANG A RIDDLE TRAINED TO MURDER

Language of Cricket Game as Confusing as American Report of Baseball Game.

Why so much slang should accompany the report of a baseball game is a mystery of America that no Englishman has ever solved. Really, you know, it's quite absurd; and a jolly bit confusing, old chap.

Of course, baseball slang is confusing to the stranger to the game, but an Englishman should never criticize our baseball slang, as Arnold Bennett, W. L. George and many others have done. Cricket slang is just as confusing, just as foolish to stranger ears—and, no doubt, just as essential to the game.

In describing the recent Eton and Harrow match at Lord's, a big event in the cricket season, the London Sphere uses a few phrases that sound like an American sporting page:

"The bat must have come forward crooked and it is not surprising to see the leg stump turning cartwheels."

"These best ball sent down in the match. It started well outside the off stump, swerved inward late in its flight, and fairly fizzled off the pitch in its new direction."

"Amory got most of his runs by beating the ball to the boundary in front of square leg, and he was not a bit particular about the line on which the ball was pitched. Several went from outside off stump, but this one pitched on his pads. Oates, behind the wicket, jumped to the leg side to save the possible bye. Eventually Amory tried one cow shot too many and the middle stump went for a walk."

TWO USES FOR WIRE-GLASS

Used Primarily for Fireproofing, It is Also Said to Be Burglar-Proof.

Wire-glass is said to be both burglar-proof and fireproof. In the first case, the wire netting embedded in its center cannot, it is claimed be broken or cut noiselessly, so that entrance by means of doors or cellar coverings of this material by thieves is rendered difficult, if not impossible. Such glass is, however, more often employed for fireproofing than for other purposes, and it enters largely into the construction of elevator doors, partitions, windows, etc.

One expert, who has tested wire-glass up to 1,700 degrees Fahrenheit, keeping it at this high temperature for half an hour at a time, states that at the first rush of heat the glass crackles, but that the netting holds it together, so that the flame cannot pass through. It seems, hold flame up to the melting point, which is different in different kinds of glass, since some melt at 1,000 degrees and others withstand 2,000 degrees successfully. When a stream of water is turned on wire-glass that has melted almost to the running point, it immediately solidifies, so that it is a material well suited for elevator shafts, where a sudden rush of flame would crack ordinary glass and admit fire to all floors.—Harper's Weekly

Describing Gout.

A well known clubman in the smoking room the other evening gave some of his fellow members a picturesque description of the gout.

"You lie in bed," he said, "with the gouty foot stretched out, and you feel as though the sole of it was pressed against the bars of a red-hot fire. In the middle of the foot is a fellow with a gun loaded to the muzzle with red-hot needles. Presently he fires the gun at your foot and you feel the red-hot needles travel up your leg and come out at the knee, not all at once, but like the animals went into the ark, two by two. When the last couple of needles have finished the course you find yourself with fear and wonder. 'Jag' will be before the fellow, the gun again. Presently you find he is under contract to fire every five minutes and you get ready for the discharge. But you can never be said to get accustomed to it, because the black guard loads it with a new kind of red hot needle every time, and sometimes adds half a dozen red-hot corkscrews. That's the gout."

Annual Infliction.

An east Cleveland young man, accompanied by his fiancée, lately called at the home of a mutual friend, where there had been a recent addition to the family. They were greeted at the door by the young wife and mother, who happened to be suffering from a severe cold. After an exchange of conventional commonplaces the young man inquired after the welfare of the baby. And the young matron understood him to be asking about her cold. Hence the following startling reply: "Well, I have one every year about this time, but this is the meanest one I've ever had"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Changing Lead to Gold.

Professor Soddy makes the assertion boldly that it is only a question of application to change lead into gold. He says that while now we can only work with electricity at 100,000 volts, it is only a matter of perfecting the method to be able to work at ten times that voltage, when the baser metals can be changed into the more precious. In other words, electricity, when brought to its highest intensity and application is the real Philosopher's Stone for which the alchemists of the middle ages searched long.

ASSASSINS ONCE FORMED A VERY INFLUENTIAL SECT.

Had Their Origin in the East and Spread Their Deadly Work Over Almost All Countries of the World.

The assassination of King George of Greece recalls the fact that the word itself is derived from a regular order of men pledged to take life, especially the life of a ruler.

The assassin sect was an offshoot of the Shia form of Mohammedanism, but its tenets comprised fragments of magianism (or sorcery), Judaism and Christianity, as well as of the teachings of the Koran. It was in some respects not unlike the Druses of Mount Lebanon, with whose outbreaks the name of Lord Dufferin was honorably connected long before he became governor general of Canada.

Its founder, who gave it his name, was Hassan Ben Sabah, chief of the famous mountain fortress of Alamoot in Persia, about 1090. He gathered about him a body of fearless young men, pledged to obey him and highly trained in various methods of murder. These were dispatched, generally singly, to end wars by killing kings or generals, or to destroy rivals or personal enemies.

In order to give them courage for their villainous work, they were taught to make use of hashish, the drug called chang in India, derived from the leaves of the common hemp plant, which is terribly intoxicating. In Arabic they were called hashischin from this fact.

These men followed their instructions in every country, as is shown by the fact that all the European nations have the word in their languages, assassin in German, assassino in French, asesino in Spanish, assassino in Portuguese and Italian, etc. But they flourished especially in the east, where they also used the terror of their name for blackmailing purposes.

The Knight Templars in the time of Richard Coeur de Lion, fought them openly, the leaders of the crusades having suffered seriously from their designs, and also spread the knowledge of them and of their leader, known to them as the "Old Man of the Mountains," throughout Christendom.

The Mongols massacred the Persian branch of the order in 1256, and the Sultan Belians tried to exterminate the Syrian branch in 1270. Neither attack was thoroughly successful, however, and the order is believed to exist to this day in Persia, and to be not without influence in some eastern affairs.

Not even Persia had more horrible assassinations than had France at the time of the revolution, and there was awful righteousness in the words in which the tyrant Robespierre addressed the national convention, when he was refused permission to make a defense against the fate to which he had consigned so many, and which now threatened him: "President of Assassins," said the deposed ruffian, "for the last time I ask liberty to speak," for by assassins nowadays we mean not members of the sect of that name, but a murderer who spills life blood for any other than a purely personal reason.

Why the Spoon Was Black.

The Rev. Fred T. Paton, son of the famous Dr. Paton, who is following up his father's work as missionary to the New Hebrides, possesses a spoon which is a gruesome relic of the old cannibal habits of the islanders. The manner in which the spoon came into his possession is interesting. He was ambushed one day by a tribe of savages, who became exceedingly friendly on learning that he was unarmed. The chief even told him that he was out to shoot a few men, but as he could get them when he wanted they could wait while he entertained his guest.

Before he left that tribe they made him a pudding which was thirteen feet round. It was an inch thick at the side and a foot deep in the middle, the ingredients consisting of a pig and some fowls, which were covered with leaves and baked on top and below with hot stones. He was about to begin to eat with a wooden spoon given to him, when a native told him something which made him halt. This spoon had been used for eight generations as the sacred spoon of the tribe, and had figured in all their cannibal feasts. Once it was white, but human blood, grease and dirt had turned it to the color of ebony.

Tudor Bed Brought Bad Luck.

Antiquarians in the old country are searching high and low for a bed that belonged to the old English Tudors. The only clue is that exactly a hundred years ago it was the property of the Rev. Richard Williams, Bodafon, Anglesey. The bed came into the possession of Mr. Williams in the following curious fashion: It had been the property of a farmer for a considerable time. The farmer had trouble, and got it into his head that the bed was the cause of his bad luck. "Surely, some foul murder had been perpetrated in it," he said, and he gave it to one of his cowboys. Some time after, the boy wanted to raise a little money, and he offered to sell the bed to Mrs. Williams. She did not want it, but to do the boy a favor, as she thought, she bought it from him for nine shillings, little supposing from its odd and antiquated appearance that it had been originally bought at the sale at Penryn of the Anglesey home of Owen Tudor, grandfather of Henry VII.

Advertising

COMMONSENSE people all now recognize the value of letting the public know who you are, and what you have to offer in the world in the way of commodity or service.

WHEN we speak of advertising we speak of the most powerful force that acts today in the world of business.

THE American people form by all odds the best educated and most open-minded public in the world. All they want is the truth, and when get that, they act clearly, logically and some times with surprising speed.

THE public wants to know the facts. It wants the facts about a kind of shoe or a brand of flour. It wants to know the kind of stuff that goes into a suit of clothes or a package of crackers.

The One Thing Above All Others

The Public Demands is Publicity

It has learned to be very skeptical about any event that occurs in the dark.

DO not keep your light under a bushel and create the opinion that you are no longer in business. Let the people know what you have to offer to them.

WOMEN ENGAGE IN BATTLE ON STREET; JURY IS APPOINTED

East Main street, Monongahela, was the scene of a four-cornered fist fight, which attracted crowds from far and near. The principals in the bout were a woman and her daughter one side, and two young women who are alleged to have made uncompromising remarks about the mother and her daughter on the other.

The combatants met and each couple gave their opinion of the other, which by the way would not do to be printed. After they had exhausted their vocabularies, the main fight began. It was no hair pulling contest either, but a regular old fashioned scrap in which they delivered blows straight from the shoulder.

After several severe engagements both sides withdrew from the field of conflict, but not satisfied, at least the two young women were not. They sought Alderman Wiper and complained before him that they had been assaulted by the woman and her daughter. The alderman immediately commanded that they be brought before him to answer these charges.

They demanded that a jury decide the matter and this evening in Alderman Wiper's court the affair will be aired and the six men will decide who were the aggressors.

COURT ADVISES DETECTIVE TO QUIT CLUB LIFE

Conditionally James H. Minstead a county seat licensed detective has been granted a renewal of his license. The appointment was made by Judge J. A. McIlvaine upon petition. The petition was signed by a large number of Washington representative professional and business men. The appointment was not made until Officer Minstead was called before the court and publicly informed that he must not have any membership in any drinking club, that he must conduct himself in a proper manner, that he must not drink to excess and must not frequent places of questionable character, except strictly on business.

Judge McIlvaine asked Officer Minstead if he belonged to any drinking club, as the court had understood he had been a member but was not at present connected with the organization. He was asked if he expected to renew that membership and he replied that he did not. The court further informed him that it understood he was a member of an organization that was nothing else but a drinking club. The court asked Officer Minstead if he drank. He replied that he did not drink to excess, but did occasionally drink a little beer.

The court remarked that the time had come when business men realized that the greatest efficiency came from those employees who did not drink, and that the court proposed to exact the same standard of its officers. Further the court said that a detective or constable should be a man of good character and that he should not go on the idea that some people had that such an officer had to be a rascal and had to visit questionable places. "You are an appointee of the court," said Judge McIlvaine, "and you have the honor of this court and your own honor at stake. We have examined your petition. It has on it good names, which sometimes are not hard to get. You know what we think about this matter and upon these conditions we make this appointment."
